

Jolynn Shoemaker has been the Director of Global Engagements within the Department of Global Affairs at UC Davis since 2016. She is also a Fellow at the Our Secure Future: Women Make the Difference, a program of the One Earth Future, where she focuses on research and advocacy on the Women, Peace, and Security agenda. She has also taught national security as an adjunct professor in Political Science at California State University Sacramento. Jolynn spent almost 20 years in Washington DC working on foreign policy and national security issues, including at the U.S. Department of State, Office of the Secretary of Defense, and NGOs focused on peace and conflict. She holds a J.D. (focus on international human rights) and an M.A. (Security Studies)